Success of the Garage Sale

Our congratulations are extended to Nancy Wolfsohn the Chair of our Treasure Trove. This year we did something different. We scheduled our first sale day on Friday. Guess what? It was a major success.

Saturday we achieved our goal. Nancy did a fantastic job. She keeps us on our toes. Sometimes when one of us becomes intransigent, Nancy will step in and remind us that it is important to make a sale and not get our danders up. Alene Krivoshey helped keep us on our toes, too.

Lynbrook Expo

It seems that we often schedule our Garage Sale the same day as Lynbrook Expo. It happened again this year. As usual, Lynbrook Historian Art Mattson made our participation in the Expo a hit. Pat McGivern was there also to lend her expertise. Madeline had arranged to have pictures of Lynbrook mounted on our display boards and both Art and Pat had fun showing people many of the 'old' places in Lynbrook. Indeed, some of those places are still there and are recognizable.

A Missing Person

One of the stalwarts of the Historical Society is Bud Robinson. He ALWAYS lets us know that he will be at a meeting, a sale, a speaker and to help at Expo. Lo and behold none of us had heard from him. The red flags went up. After a little leg work and much thought we found him. Bob Sympson remembered his good friend John Williams. After a phone call to John we were able to locate his daughter and from there our detectives went to work. He is currently in Waterford Ct. and recuperating.

Nunley's Amusement Park

We will sponsor Marisa L. Berman, a local historian who has written an account of Nunley's Amusement Park. Do you remember when...? Of course, you do. Didn't every young person enjoy a trip to Nunley's and a ride on the carousel?

Ms. Berman will present a discussion at the Lynbrook Library Thursday, November 7, 2013 at 7:15 p.m. Why don't you join us and try for the brass ring?

No. 3... Foreclosure Court

Some time when we read the paper we come upon some attention-grabbing items. This was one that appeared to be very interesting and one which offered an opportunity to learn something new.

A legal notice in the Herald indicated that there would be a foreclosure sale at public auction on October 1, 2013. What was up for sale?

The property located 8-14 Front Street East Rockaway, NY was to be foreclosed. That property we would recognize as Skippy's Bait Shop and the Salty Dog. The Historical Society was not in a position to buy it but it would be interesting to see to whom it was sold.

Not understanding the mechanics of foreclosure court, when a gentlemen stood up and bid $100 we wondered if the property went for $100 or $100 above the judgment of $394,578.42. At the end, we approached the buyer but he blew us off and that was the end of our education.

No. 4... NATTERINGS FROM THE President

Do you ever have difficulty sleeping or wake up in the middle of the night with something on your mind and find it difficult to return to sleep?

Here are some wanderings which come to mind in those wee hours when all is quiet.

Louise Campbell was the mother of the bride for a friend who recently lost her own mother
David Wolfsohn has a great possibility of realizing his dreams of a career in music
Stephanie Maddalone celebrated her son's wedding.

Madeline Pearson and Heidi Hofmann attended the aforementioned wedding and then took a cruise to Alaska. Now that's a segue
Richard Schimmel was missed at Expo and the Garage Sale.

Betsy Davison is making an important move.

Richard Schimmel is too.

Mary Colway and John Van Ingen Paris visitors enjoyed hearing Vivaldi at Saint Chappelle.

and visiting the Bird Market which is open every Sunday in case you want to buy a bird in Paris, Carol Hansen was a font of information about Pocket Parks in Lynbrook. Lynbrook Legislator F.X. Becker, Jr. had requested information about them.

Andrea Baum is an accomplished photographer Steve Vilardi enjoys old cars and showing them to his niece

Gene Torborg is very knowledgeable about Fire Department history..

Art & Norie Mattson did an extensive tour of Europe on their motorcycle but made it home for Expo

John Krendel through the LINK program at South Middle School made not only the Herald but the Pennysaver as well.

No. 5... Membership

We welcome the following people to new Membership:

As a reminder, we hope that you have all renewed your membership and had a friend join too.

No. 6...

We have had some interesting connections from the Web these last few months.

James Christian contacted with a picture of a Fire Department badge. The badge belonged to a friend of his and we wanted to know if we could identify it. Why us?

It seemed that there were only four Protector Hook Ladder and Hose Company in the country, East Rockaway was one of them. He had been able to locate us, but did not hear from Hicksville, NY; Brattleboro VT; or Selma, AL. We made inquiries of Gene Torborg and the company badge had had an early steam engine and our Company had Tootsie which was a hand pumper. We were pleased when James told us that we were the only historical society who had answered him.

We have been most fortunate in find the right person at the right time with the right information: John Bishop, Art Mattson, John Williams, Carol Hansen to name just those people queried this month.

No. 7... The Roaring Twenties

Bet this caught your eye! You may relax. We will not quite recall it with the bon vivante of this picture. In our research for pictures to suggest to Elaine for tickets and posters, this emerged as just one from of those days. Don't be offended. It was a time before most of us were born. It certainly was a different era. The pictures were exciting, threatening and most assuredly indicative of another day. Some pictures had guns ready at the entrance.

The Tea Committee is hard at work planning the menu, the ambiance, the workers, and those who will actually prepare our goodies. Mary Colway welcomes ideas and input. Again this year we are seeking Raffle Prizes. Believe it or not, the Raffle is one of the critical parts of the tea. It offers people an opportunity to be creative to make gifts for others. It adds suspense to the afternoon and it is an integral part of our event. We are still open to entertainment. Because of time, we probably will do a Did You Know?

WOW!

Do you browse the web? It is a fun thing to do and it is amazing what turns up. Mary Colway alerted us to this.

The Christ Episcopal Church of Lynbrook celebrated its 110th anniversary, October, 2013. We reached out, albeit, late too to participate in the celebration. We did sit down and talk with Rev. JK Melton who is the Pastor in Charge of the Christ Episcopal Church.

When he and his wife Heather moved into the Rectory, they decided it would be advantageous to look around and check out the attic.

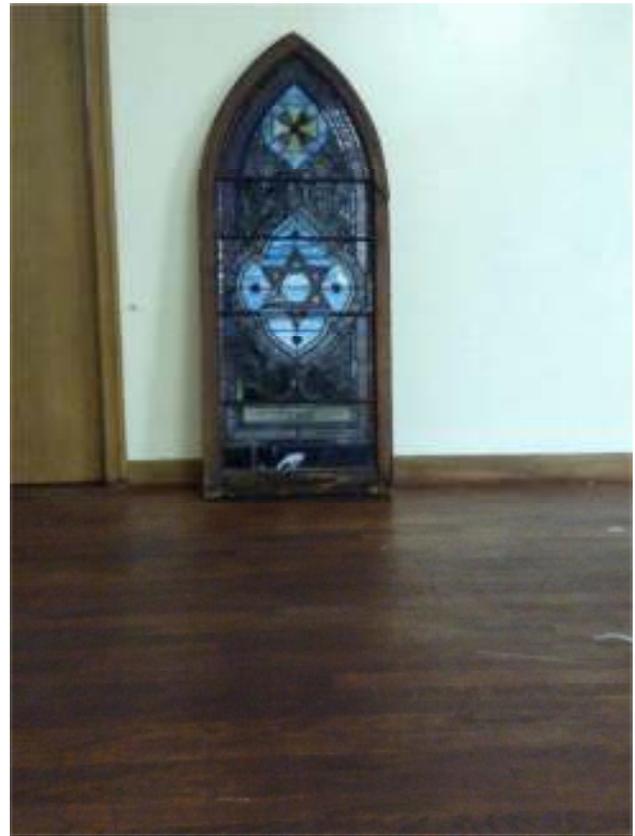

Lo and behold they came across some old windows which they believed dated back to the church prior to 1910. This they determined by checking old photos still in possession of the church.

In talking with him, Pastor Melton said that original church was located on Merrick Road and Earle Avenue. The village sought to purchase that land for an expansion and they offered the church the land where it is presently located Peninsula Boulevard and Hempstead Avenue.

A new church was built and sufficed for forty years. In 1961 the old building was torn down and the present church was built. The windows were replaced.

Yet another instance of the wonders of the internet, Rev. JK and his wife Heather located a Marilyn Miller a serials cataloging specialist at the Ohio State University Library. Ms. Miller is working with the support of the Gahanna Sanctuary Board to contact as many as possible of the 850 churches which at one time contained Von Gerichten windows. Ms. Miller is doing research with the ultimate goal of a book on glassmakers Theodore and Ludwig Von Gerichten. Ludwig was designer of original Christ Church windows. It is believed that these windows were made in his Munich studio.

The Star of David window cleaned and standing in the Parish Hall.

When a church expressed an interest in purchasing Von Gerichten stained glass windows a company representative would travel to the church and meet with congregation representatives to discuss window patterns and scenes. Using standard patterns in coordination with unique drawings, a drawing of the proposed window would be created. Back in the Columbus Von Gerichten office, Employee Mary Ann Holtzinger Mclean, using a pricing formula, would figure the cost of the window. This pricing formula took into account a number of things including the size of the window and the intricacy of the window; the more tiny pieces, the greater the price.

Once the congregation approved the price, work began on the windows. Large sheets of paper were spread on work tables in the studio's second floor work area. Outlines of each piece were drawn on the paper as if it were a large puzzle board. Glass, having been previously purchased from glass manufacturing companies, was cut into pieces, placed as if they were puzzle pieces onto paper, and were then secured into place with pieces of lead called canes

While not all 1800 Von Gerichten stained glass windows still exist the majority of the windows, like those in the Gahanna Sanctuary, still grace the buildings in which they were originally installed. Window photos and information from these churches' archives are being studied and compared and similarities and differences are being noted. Eventually the information received from these churches concerning their Von Gerichten windows will be compiled into a book that will take a comprehensive look at the company and the designs in the windows created by the company.

Cleaning the windows...

Posted on July 10, 2013 by The Rev. JK Melton

When we moved into the Rectory, we found some old stained glass windows in the attic. No one knew where they were from, but our hunch was that they were the original windows from the first Christ Church building. Later, we found a picture that was captioned, "Easter, 1913." There, above the altar of the old church were the old windows!

The windows probably were placed in the attic in 1961, when the old church was torn down to make way for the Parish Hall. They gathered a lot of dust and some other muck. The frames have been a bit damaged, mostly due to poor storage. Remarkably, only one piece of glass is missing.

Recently, Heather and I cleaned the windows. Ultimately, we hope to have them framed and lit so that people can enjoy their beauty. This will cost about $700. What a nice memorial gift that would make (hint, hint).

Let's talk. There is much history and we are so proud to have learned this. Thank you.
